

Angela Nicole Uhl Wagner, 49, passed away at University of Washington Medical Center December 3, 2012. She grew up on a bluegrass sod farm in Southern Indiana. She graduated from Providence High School in Clarksville, Indiana in 1981. She entered Ball State University Honors College in Muncie, Indiana graduating Magna cum laude in 1986 with a Master's Degree in Psychology. Early years of dance and piano lessons served her well, while at Ball State she participated in theater and singing. Her business career led to Accenture where she initiated their coaching program. Angela was certified as a Masters Coach by the International Coaching Federation. She formed her own company, Wagner Leadership Group, working with Fortune 500 executives – a natural fit – fulfilling her passion to help others.

Her career was interrupted in 2010 with a diagnosis of leiomyosarcoma, a rare cancer. She continued to be optimistic, gracious and loving throughout the next two years.

Thanks to a local cohort, “Angela’s Angels”, who so devotedly and unselfishly cared for her throughout this time. Thanks also for the medical staff who not only exhibited professional care but personal interest as well.

She is survived by her parents, Jude and Mary Jean Uhl, Marco Island, FL/Jeffersonville, IN; one sister Monica, Whidbey Island, WA; three brothers Jeff (Linda) Memphis, Indiana; Greg (Alicia) Wilmington, North Carolina; Jerry, Sellersburg, Indiana; one niece, Natalie; nephews Griffin, Aidan, Kyler and Cooper; and many aunts, uncles and cousins.
