IHSAA STUDENT/ATHLETIC TIP OF THE WEEK

Every Monday, the IHSAA offers a Tip of the Week on its website to encourage students to do their best. Last week, student-athletes were encouraged to follow the rules to keep from jeopardizing their status with the team. This week, players are encouraged to continue playing their best because a comeback is always possible. To read the full Tip of the Week, click below:

MATH TEACHERS TRY NEW METHODS

The Math Department faculty is enjoying applying teaching methods and tips learned at National Council of Teachers of Mathematics (NCTM) regional conference in October. Teachers have been implementing ways to transition away from the traditional lecture-student practice model to more project-based learning as they prepare for the move toward Common Core Standards tentatively scheduled for the 2014-2015 school year. BLUE NEWS - OF OLD

By Ray Day '57

THROUGH COLD AND SNOW,
THE SHOW MUST GO ON!

Recent bitter cold weather and the resulting two-day extension of Christmas break brought to mind another very cold January from the past. The cast of the spring musical coped with weeks of snow days and an energy cutback - and still the show went on. Click to read more.

And lastly...

As mentioned in the last e-VISION, we are testing a new format for the e-VISION. The email portion is shorter and easier to read on mobile devices, and this week, we have designed the newsletter with the majority of the stories listed as a brief description in the email and continuing in full on the school website. You can choose the story you wish to read and click to continue to the website. You can click back to the email to select another story, or click Next to read the following story. Or you can start with the first story and click Next to continue through all the stories without having to go back to the original email.

In the coming weeks, we will be sending you a brief survey regarding the new format. We encourage you to take a moment to respond to the survey when it arrives. We value your comments and your input.

Many thanks in advance.
