ALWAYS A PIONEER: New Logo Looks to Future

We know our alumni hold fast to their Providence memories, and the Pioneer head logo is treasured by our alumni from the 1970s through recent years. The refreshed logo, pictured top right, has been well received by current students and recent graduates, but our alumni with longer memories of the older logo have had more difficulty embracing the updated version.

While it can be difficult to accept change in things that we hold dear, it's not the first adaptation of the athletic logo. According to research by Ray Day '57, the Pioneers were originally represented by a covered wagon. In a recent e-VISION newsletter, he traced the various representations of the athletic logo, finding various cartoons of a Pioneer in a coonskin cap. Some alumni have shared stories of how the introduction of the long-held Pioneer head caused a stir when it replaced the standing Pioneer leaning on his rifle.

Stan Denny, a PHS teacher and coach in the mid 1950s to early '60s, created that Pioneer head not as an official logo for Providence but as part of his job drawing sports cartoons for the old Louisville Times. He crafted the Pioneer to represent Providence teams in his weekly drawings of high school sports news. Denny said he was happy when Providence began putting the Pioneer head on athletic and school publications in the late 1970s and then when it was adopted as the logo. Now, four decades later, he said that logo has a dated look and readily gave his permission and encouragement to update it.

"It was time for something more modern," Denny said.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

One of the things our incoming freshmen soon learn about this school is that once you are a Providence Pioneer you are always a Pioneer. The loyalty our alumni and friends have to this school is simply awe-inspiring.

The support we receive allows us to keep our facility updated and to provide a safe and up-to-date campus for our students.

Whenever I think of the word Pioneer my thoughts turn to the Sisters of Providence who pioneered this school and to St. Theodora Guerin. I am always humbled by her courage. Thanks to her pioneering efforts we have this school. And, we continue to build on her legacy.

As the end of the 2013-2014 school year came to a close, construction crews swarmed the campus for a variety of renovation projects. These projects were part of the school's Master Plan for Campus Improvements, a plan which looks to the future and the needs of our students, facility and grounds. In order to grow and to attract students to our school, we must always think like Pioneers as well as be prudent, just as our founding Sisters of Providence were.

Our projects this summer included reworking three offices to provide shared space, moving the campus store to the end of the second floor so it is accessible from the main lobby, the Guidance Office to the middle of the second floor to a more spacious location to better accommodate its staff and the students it serves, and the chapel to the first floor, where the quieter atmosphere is more conducive to prayer and liturgy.

The most striking improvements include those to our gyms and football/soccer field. The Larkin Center and Koetter Gym received new bleachers thanks to a donation from past parents Bill (Hon. '14) and Juanita Beach. The floor of Dottie Galligan Zipp Court in the Larkin Center was stripped, repainted and emblazoned with a refreshed athletic logo. With the permission of the original designer, Stan Denny, the Advancement Office sought the services of a nationally renowned logo designer who (at a severely reduced price) created a logo that adds more movement to the Pioneer head and has him looking to the future. It features the school colors, blue and white, with gold as an accent color.

As we plan for a future fieldhouse for Murphy Stadium, the need for a combined football/soccer field became clear, and a synthetic turf surface was the most cost-effective option, allowing for the increased activity on the field. Gene Sartini Field now features a combination of wear-resistant slit-film and monofilament synthetic fibers. The most notable features are the navy blue end zones emblazoned with the new custom-designed font for the athletic logo and the Pioneer at center field.

The newly refreshed logo embodies the spirit of the school – always a Pioneer.

In Christ,

Joan M. Hurley

PIONEERS FROM THE START:

'55 Grad Considers Impact of Providence Years

Sr. Ann Margaret O'Hara, SP '55, is a member of the first graduating class from Providence. She began her ministry as a teacher but spent most of her time in service to the Sisters of Providence, including five years as general superior of the order. She is the featured speaker at our Annual Student Assistance Program Dinner. Here, she shares a reflection on what it means to her to be a part of that Pioneering class:

“I was privileged to be in the first graduating class of Our Lady of Providence High School where the Pioneer spirit grew in me. As I entered the new high school in 1951, I had no idea what it meant to be a Pioneer and how my life would be changed forever.

“The conditions of the school building – no windows, no doors in the first days – should have given me a clue. We learned and gathered in somewhat primitive conditions but grew in a richness of relationships knowing the friendship and support of each other and the faculty and staff. Our faculty were interested in us as persons as well as students.

“To be a Pioneer is to be a person of Providence – one open to the possibilities of life, making a difference, moving ahead in times of difficulties, and helping others. That spirit of Providence has inspired me throughout my life. It certainly influenced my response to the needs of others and openness to leadership in the Sisters of Providence. My classmates still have that spirit of leadership and service that inspired them 60 years ago.”

THE IMPORTANCE OF VOLUNTARY SUPPORT: Annual Needs

School begins each year with a burst of energy and enthusiasm as classes get underway, teams prepare for new seasons and extracurricular activities resume. The task of ensuring that the school budget is balanced through Providence's various fundraising programs also gets re-energized. We are tuition-driven, but voluntary support from alumni, parents, and friends in the community plays a major role in maintaining the school's financial fitness. Without the support of donors acknowledged in this report and the ongoing financial commitment of the Deanery parishes, Providence could not continue its educational mission.

Our Annual Student Assistance Program (ASAP) is the primary source of institutional funding for the financial assistance that is requested each year. The direct appeal kicks off with a complimentary dinner in October and is augmented by periodic mail appeals, both standard and electronic. In addition, two special events, the Gala Dinner and Auction in January and the Pioneer Golf Scramble in August, provide an opportunity for "friend" and fun raising to complement the fundraising component.

We are most grateful for the gifts that these activities generate. Very simply, they are vital to the school's fiscal health and well-being.

THE IMPORTANCE OF VOLUNTARY SUPPORT: Future Needs

Our founders were forward-thinking. They believed that Catholic education was necessary and would stand the test of time. Six decades later, their vision is still alive and well. Responsibility for the future, however, rests with us.

The effort to build an endowment for Providence does not extend back to its early days; it is a relatively recent endeavor. Over the past few years, this concept of anticipating needs down the road by gathering resources through endowment funds has been gaining acceptance and support. Providence’s endowment now exceeds $1.2 million, with roughly one-third of that total coming from the work alumni classes have done in building individual class endowment funds. Earnings from the endowment become part of the overall institutional financial aid offered to families who qualify. A $3 million goal for the endowment is part of the school’s current Master Plan. Achieving that will enable Providence to address effectively the growing need for financial assistance.

We are grateful to our alumni and friends who have contributed to the growth of these funds and for their continued support. If you have any questions about your preferred method of support for Providence, please contact Vice President of Advancement Tony Perito at tperito@providencehigh.net or call (812) 945-3350. Thank you!

Be Part of the Mother Theodore Guerin Heritage Society

A treasured part of the school's legacy is the relationship with the Sisters of Providence, the primary faculty and staff of the then-new high school in 1951. It was natural, then, to look to the order and honor its founder, Saint Mother Theodore Guerin, when seeking a name for this planned-gift recognition club. The Saint Mother Theodore Guerin Heritage Society acknowledges gift intentions that come through the estate planning process (bequests, life insurance, life income or life estate plans).

Like the endowment fund, the Guerin Society focuses on the future funding Providence will need to flourish and thrive. When you use your will, life insurance policy, or charitable trust to make a future gift to the school, you are formally recognized through the Guerin Society.

Planning your estate probably ranks alongside visits to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles as something grudgingly done at best or completely avoided at worst. It's just not that easy facing up to our mortality. However, planning for that eventuality does benefit your loved ones and can be beneficial to organizations like Providence that you have supported during your lifetime. When Providence actually receives your gift is not something we determine, but making arrangements for it involves your thoughtful consideration and possibly the help of an advisor.

The members of this new planned-gift recognition club are listed here for the first time. We are pleased to acknowledge the support that these individuals have committed, as taking the first step in the gift planning process is usually the most difficult.

If you are thinking about helping Providence in this way, we will be happy to offer suggestions and information to assist you in your decision -- simply contact Vice President of Advancement Tony Perito at tperito@ providencehigh.net or (812) 945-3350. Consultation with your financial advisor on the appropriateness of a gift in the context of your personal circumstances is strongly encouraged.

Geswein/Kaiser Family Has Proud Multi-Generation Tradition

With 60 graduation classes having passed through the doors of Providence, it's becoming more common to enroll third-generation students. Among this year's freshmen, 14 have a parent and grandparent who are Providence graduates, and half of those students are the oldest sibling in their family. Zach Kaiser is one of those freshmen. His Providence pedigree includes both parents and his maternal grandparents – plus his maternal great-grandfather received a special diploma from Providence in 1970 recognizing his having earned his GED. His mother's family alone includes 28 alumni.

Francis Geswein, the recipient of that diploma, said he is proud to still have family getting a quality Catholic education at Providence.

"I think it's great," he said. "I'm really happy to see my great-grandchildren here."

For Zach, attending school where nearly all of his relatives attended makes him proud.

"I love being a Pioneer, and I am so glad my parents are carrying on the tradition by sending me here," he said. "I am happy to be a part of this school because it is a special place."

Path Paved Before Them

His parents, Billy '91 and Angie (Geswein '91) Kaiser of Floyds Knobs, have never given a second thought to where Zach – and his three younger siblings – would attend junior high and high school. They said they simply wanted their children to have the same opportunities they enjoyed.

"We want them to go to Providence because of the positive experience that we had – the faith development and the sense of community -- and the tight bonds that we still have with those we went to school with," said Billy Kaiser, whose five siblings also graduated from Providence.

Angie Kaiser said she especially enjoys hearing her children's stories of their Providence experience and sharing her own memories with them. Zach is a freshman but in his third year at Providence, having attended junior high after graduating from St. Mary of the Knobs. His sister Kaylee is a seventh grader, having also graduated from St. Mary of the Knobs.

She said she loves knowing her children will experience the same sense of tradition, Blue Pride and spiritual growth opportunities that she did.

"Having all of that together in one school makes it one of the best times of your life," she said. "They are really lucky to be a Pioneer for six years," adding that her sister, Christy (Geswein) Nash '96 was among one of the first classes of junior high students.

Angie Kaiser said she grew up knowing she would one day attend Providence, the same way her father, Bob Geswein '67, did. She remembers being excited about the opportunity to attend high school here, even though many of her classmates from St. Mary of the Knobs (then part of New Albany–Floyd County Schools) went to public high school. Once at Providence, her experience exceeded her expectations, including preparing her for college and giving her the chance to meet her husband as well as many lifelong friends. As a part-time nurse, she is grateful for the networking opportunities that come with being part of the Providence community. And she is grateful for the example set by her grandparents and parents that put her on the path to Providence.

A Life-Changing Encounter

Bob Geswein, Angie's father, said that his parents set the expectation early that he and his six younger siblings would attend Providence – and that they would work the nearby farms in Starlight to pay for their tuition. But they all did so willingly – and got up early each morning to make the long trip into Clarksville to go to school.

Looking back, Geswein said, attending Providence changed the trajectory of his life. With many young men being drafted for the Vietnam War, his plan was to enlist in the U.S. Army. But his football coach, Bill Kleier, changed all that. After Geswein's football season, Kleier called all the seniors individually into this office to ask about their future plans. When Geswein shared his, Kleier asked why he wasn't planning to attend college, and Geswein said he couldn't afford it. Kleier encouraged him to apply, and after Geswein was accepted into Purdue University, Kleier showed him how to apply for financial aid. When Geswein learned his responsibility would be only $700, he decided he could earn that much and enrolled, majoring in agriculture.

"The most important thing that came about from my Providence education was it put me in a situation that put me in contact with the man who helped me go to college at a time when few people went to college," he said, adding that it meant a lot that his coach "worked to make sure we did something with our lives."

Geswein said his graduating from college paved the way for his younger siblings to also go to college – and set the expectation for his three children to go to Providence and then to college. He has spent his career with Harrison County REMC and when his three children were young, owned a chicken farm in Floyds Knobs. Like their father, they worked the farm during their summers to help pay their Providence tuition. He now lives in Charlestown and has a farm in New Washington.

Angie Kaiser's mother, Judy (Kirchgessner) Geswein '68, said she feels blessed that they were able to afford to send their children to Providence and that now her children can also do the same for her grandchildren. Although she didn't realize it while she was a student here, what she values most about her Providence experience is the value system she developed during her four years here. And she is pleased her children received and now her grandchildren are receiving the same foundation.

"I just feel hopeful and secure that they are getting the best education that they can and not only the education but the values," Judy Geswein said. "It's just a wonderful school, and I'm glad the teachers are there because they can easily go somewhere else and make more money. But it's not about money; it's about making a difference. Faith in God is the best gift you can give someone."

"I love being a Pioneer, and I am so glad my parents are carrying on the tradition by sending me here."

– Zach Kaiser, Class of 2018
